Program Description

The mission of the Administration Program is to: provide continuity and quality in governmental services by protecting employees from adverse action for reasons unrelated to their conduct or performance on the job and to provide systems for maintaining the official personnel and position records of the state.

The goals of the Administration Program are to provide a prompt, inexpensive system for resolving removal, discipline, rule violation, and discrimination cases that satisfies due process requirements and to utilize technology to improve the productivity and effectiveness of State Civil Service and its user agencies.

The activities for this program are as follows:

- The Appeals Activity includes the three referees and two clerical employees as well as the chief referee needed to conduct all appeal hearings for classified state employees necessary to satisfy due process requirements and Article X of the Constitution.
- The Administrative Support Activity includes the Legal, Budgeting, Planning, Accounting, Purchasing, Mail, and Property Control functions for the Department of State Civil Service and the Civil Service Commission as well as some of these functions for the Ethics Administration and the Division of Administrative Law. # 560_2000 — Human Resources Management PROGRAM AUTHORIZATION: The Human Resources Management Program of the Department of State Civil Service exists under the authorization of Article X of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana.

Program Description

The mission of the Human Resources Management Program is to promote effective human resource management throughout state government by developing, implementing, and evaluation systems for job evaluation, pay, employment, promotion and personnel management and by administering these systems through rules, policies and practices that encourage wise utilization of the state's financial and human resources.

The goals of the Human Resources Management Program are as follows:

- I. Administer the classification and compensation systems by developing and implementing flexible job evaluation and pay policies and practices that can be adapted to meet agencies' unique requirements.
- II. Create and administer programs, rules, assistance procedures and training that promote, encourage and enhance effectiveness, efficiency, and accountability in state agencies and their employees.
- III. Provide processes and policies that enable state agency managers to fill vacant positions with highly qualified applicants in a timely fashion and in accordance with legal and professional standards.
- IV. Provide for the systematic evaluation of the effectiveness of human resource practices in state agencies.

The activities for this program are as follows:

- The Human Resource Program Assistance Activity provides assistance to state agencies by reviewing, developing and implementing rules that encourage effectiveness, efficiency, and accountability in state agencies (including layoff and performance planning and review), and administers a mandatory training program designed to enable agency supervisors and human resource managers to assume greater responsibilities in the management of their employees.
- The Compensation Activity maintains the uniform classification and pay plans throughout the classified state service by establishing job evaluation and pay policies, performing position audits, writing job specifications, performing job studies and classification reviews, establishing new jobs and positions, performing compensation studies and recommending pay adjustments, and allocating and reallocating positions.
- The Staffing Activity provides for recruitment, selection, appointment and promotion of the best available state employees based on merit, efficiency, fitness and length of service.
- The Human Resource Program Accountability Activity evaluates the effectiveness of the human resources practices in all state agencies through a system of regular program audits and performs investigations into allegation of Civil Service Rules violations or discrimination.

Plans are in development to continue to deliver the mandatory training to supervisors and we have added comprehensive training for HR professionals who are new to the field as well as a "special learning series" on various topics of interest for experienced HR professionals, such as controlling absenteeism and tardiness, FLSA changes, workforce planning and development, and the development of sound agency policies covering a varity of issues. The time spent in the class-room over the past few years will be available after June 2005 for our trainers to develop and deliver these important courses.

This indicator was changed from Key to Supporting because job studies and pay schedule reviews resulting in a pay hearing before the Civil Service Commission occur twice a year, one in July and a second in December.

FY 05-06 ended with a total of 139.03% of jobs reviewed. This increase is attributed to the review and implementation of multiple pay plan adjustments job study requests. After reviewing historical data and information, the Compensation Division has decided to gather data for the current fiscal year and FY 07-08 before committing to a new target; this additional data will assist the team insetting our target in future years.

The Department of State Civil Service is changing the way state jobs are filled. Our new approach emphasizes two goals: maximizing openness of competition for state jobs and giving employers better, more flexible tools for making selection decisions. We are using an internet-based, decentralized hiring method to make a faster, more direct connection between employers and job seekers. And we are developing more tools to assess candidate competencies while simultaneously giving employers greater flexibility in how they use those assessments to meet the specific needs of their individual positions. This performance indicator is a measure of the percentage of existing Job Classifications which use a decentralized hiring method.

- III. To provide operational guidance in the legal requirements of the Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service System to the local civil service boards, governing and appointing authorities, department chiefs, employees of the classified fire and police services, and other local officers regarding the duties and obligations imposed upon them by civil service law and relevant State and Federal laws pertaining to the administration and management of personnel within the classified service. (Louisiana Revised Statutes, 33:2479(G)(1), (4), (5), (6) and 33:2539(1), (4), (5), (6)).

The activities for this agency are as follows:

TESTING

- The Office of State Examiner provides testing in the local jurisdictions for both competitive and promotional appointments. Legal requirements and professionally acceptable standards require that such tests be validated and supported by adequate documentation. There are several types of validation strategies, but the underlying principle of validation is that the knowledge, skills, and abilities measured by employment selection tests should be substantially related to those skills necessary in order to perform the job for which evaluation is being conducted. This poses a unique problem for the Office of State Examiner in that the Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service System contains a wide range of department sizes based upon the needs of the respective jurisdictions. While the rank structure in both fire and police departments may appear to be fairly standard with common class titles in the respective services in most jurisdictions, there is actually a wide variation in the assignment of duties and responsibilities. The job of Police Lieutenant in Abbeville or Minden, for example, may be vastly different than the job of Police Lieutenant in Shreveport or Baton Rouge.
- There are two types of examinations prepared by the Office of State Examiner: Those developed for use across multiple jurisdictions, and those customs designed for a specific use in a single jurisdiction. The foundation of the exam development process for both types of examinations is a comprehensive job analysis, which identifies the distinguishing responsibilities assigned by the appointing authority to the respective classes under his or her control. Regardless of whether the number of positions being analyzed is large or small, standard job analysis techniques require the job to be broken down into individual elements called "tasks," which, when combined, form a complete picture of all the duties which might be assigned to a specific class of positions. The tasks are generally presented in questionnaire format to experienced incumbents in the class being evaluated. The questionnaire respondents are asked to evaluate each task by means of scales for importance, frequency of performance, consequence of error for failing to perform the task correctly, and whether or not the incumbent needed to have the knowledge or ability to perform the task from the first day on the job. Whenever the job analysis surveys a sample of the population of a large class, every attempt is made to representatively sample all relevant race/sex subgroups and applicable working units. The aggregate of responses for all questionnaire respondents in the jurisdiction provides a clear picture of the job as it is performed in that department and what knowledge, skills, and abilities are needed in order to begin a working test period in the class.
- By comparing the data for the respective past job analysis studies between the various departments, experience has shown that the duties assigned to some lower level classes are substantially the same across jurisdictions. Therefore, we have found it cost effective to develop examinations for multi-jurisdictional use in the lowest competitive levels, and in the lower promotional classes through the rank of first line supervisor in both the fire and police services (Fire Captain in the fire service and Police Sergeant in the police service). The job analysis approach to providing documentary support for the multi-jurisdictional examinations is to conduct a stand alone job analysis in each jurisdiction, then combine the data for the development of one or more examinations (as needed) for the class being analyzed. While there is a long term cost savings in being able to use an examination in multiple jurisdictions, the process required to validate this type of examination is much more extensive (and the cost is therefore greater) than that required to validate those exams designed for a single jurisdiction. In addition to the basic job analysis process described above, the validation of a multi-jurisdictional exam requires that job analysis interviews be conducted with incumbents to augment and verify the existing task lists, that subject matter expert panels be convened to obtain feedback from experienced employees in the class to provide job analysis information and to review newly developed examination material, and that extensive statistical analyses be conducted on adverse impact, exam performance, and criterion validity. (A criterion study compares examination performance with an objective measure of success on the job for a sample of test takers for a numerical estimate of examination validity, expressed as a correlation coefficient.)

- Conversely, we have determined with a few exceptions that the duties assigned to those classes above the rank of Police Sergeant in the police service and Fire Captain in the fire service are so different between jurisdictions so as to warrant the construction of unique examinations for specific uses in each jurisdiction. Therefore, the second category of tests prepared by the Office of State Examiner are those custom designed for specific classes in each jurisdiction. (Because of a relatively flat organizational structure in the City of Kenner Police Department and a marked difference in the level of responsibility inherent in the class of Police Sergeant from that represented by the class of Sergeant elsewhere in the state, we have extended our custom development process down to the rank of Sergeant in that city.) The relatively small numbers of applicants tested by means of the custom designed examinations does not permit the extensive statistical analyses that are possible with the multi-jurisdictional examinations. On the other hand, the process of custom designing the examination to evaluate the specific knowledge and skills needed to perform the unique set of duties assigned to a class of positions in a single jurisdiction increases the content validity of the examination. In layman's terms, this means that the examination will presumably be a better predictor of success on the job as we are only evaluating that body of knowledge necessary to perform work in the class in a specific setting. This custom designed testing format allows this office to be sensitive to the needs of both large and small jurisdictions, and departments with unique organizational structure needs. In other words, the examination for Police Lieutenant in Abbeville will reflect the duties assigned to the class in that city, while the test for Police Lieutenant in Shreveport will, by necessity, be substantially different, despite the fact that the classes have a common name.
- We provide an expanded version of the custom designed testing process in some upper management levels by means of modified assessment center evaluations. When the job analysis indicates that a combination of management skills (such as delegation and management control, decision making, planning, problem solving, interpersonal skills, and written and/or oral communication skills) is critical to the performance of the job, a means of evaluation more comprehensive than a multiple choice test is required. In these environments, we design a job simulation exercise that is based upon the "in-basket" test format. Candidates are presented with a scenario, which involves taking over a former incumbent's position. A central decision making problem is presented through a series of letters, memoranda, or other documents that might be found in the former incumbent's in-basket. The exercise requires the candidate to evaluate the problem presented, make decisions, and present a solution that will be evaluated by a team of trained raters. The format of the solution is specified by the exercise (based on the skills needed on the job), and may take either a written or oral format. Candidates may be asked to prepare a letter, for example, or they may be asked to make an oral presentation to a target group such as the city council or a citizen's group. Oral presentations are videotaped for later evaluation by trained, in-house raters. Whether the outcome of the job simulation exercise is written or oral, benchmarks for performance are established in three major areas: content/problem analysis, communication skills, and interpersonal relations. A team of three raters is trained to evaluate candidate behavior and compare the performance of the individual candidate against the established benchmarks for a specific rating that, while subjective, is highly reliable. The evaluations of the three raters are then pooled for an overall assessment of the candidates' performance on the exercise.
- The Americans With Disabilities Act requires that the Office of State Examiner provide reasonable accommodations in the testing environment for candidates with bona fide disabilities, which affect significant life activities. In processing these requests, we ask that the local civil service board, to which the application for accommodation has been made, obtain proof of the candidate's disability from a physician or other recognized disability professional. At the local civil service board's request, we will provide accommodations reasonable to the respective disability. This may include a private examining room for an applicant who has been diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, a reader and extra time for an applicant with dyslexia (which also requires a private examination setting as the reader would disturb other candidates), or the translation of the test into a braille format for an applicant with a visual impairment. The application of this law presents a particularly troubling problem for this office in that the job analysis conducted for all of our competitive classes has identified the ability to read as an essential ability on the job. By allowing the test to be read to an applicant, we are not assessing this critical skill, yet we have no way of knowing if the respective department could accommodate such a disability. In addition, having a low IQ has also been identified as a permanent disability, which significantly affects major life activities, a problem which is particularly troubling when assessing candidates for public safety employment where successful candidates might be making critical life and death decisions. Until such time as further clarification on the application of this law is provided at the Federal level, we must continue to carefully evaluate each request for accommodations on a case-by-case basis. While we have been successful in most cases in securing additional help from the respective jurisdictions in the administration of these examinations, most requests require a private examination setting and additional personnel from this office. We have had several instances of multiple requests for accommodation for the same examination time, and in one case, were required to send four (4) examiners for an examination that could have been administered under normal circumstances with only one (1) employee. While it has proven somewhat difficult to anticipate the number of requests that will be received in a given year, and actual requests have declined over the past year, we must be prepared to respond to such situations when the need arises.

- The Office of State Examiner devotes substantial resources to insuring the validity of our examinations. Those unfamiliar with the legal requirements and consequences surrounding the use of employment testing might question the need for expenses associated with our proactive approach to test validation. From the positive viewpoint, a job-related examination, which is developed according to professionally acceptable standards, will be an effective tool in selecting individuals suited to specific employment situations. Effective selection has an impact on controlling costs and improving employee efficiency for employers. On the negative side, a poor selection test that is not job related may increase employer costs due to high turnover and poor performance, in addition to being subject to challenge by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission or the Department of Justice. The state was recently provided evidence of the extensive costs associated with a failure to utilize appropriately validated examinations in the settlement between the State Police and the U. S. Department of Justice regarding charges of discrimination in the use of the State Trooper examination. The cost to the state resulted in well over a million dollars in damages and legal fees for the inappropriate documentation and use of only one test. The full scope of testing responsibilities and potential liability for the Office of State Examiner becomes readily apparent when one considers the fact that we administer approximately 450 tests per year in jurisdictions served by this office. Each test has the same potential for challenge, as did the single examination for State Trooper if it is not appropriately developed and supported.
- To preserve the integrity of the examination process, state law requires that examinations be administered to all the candidates at the same time and under the same conditions. As a protective public safety measure, state law also requires that examinations be administered in the jurisdiction for which testing is done. While this causes extensive travel time for the Office of State Examiner examining personnel, the city or fire protection district is not left with a serious manpower shortage due to the candidates for a promotional examination being tested miles away at a regional testing center. Examinations may be stopped at any time such a local emergency occurs.

PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT

- The second major activity performed by the Office of State Examiner is that of assisting civil service boards in reviewing appointments and personnel movements for compliance with civil service law. Records are also maintained on all personnel actions reported for each employee within the system. Appointing authorities are required to report appointments, promotions, demotions, and disciplinary actions to their local civil service board within 15 days. The Office of State Examiner provides a standard personnel action form (PAF) to the local entities to facilitate the reporting of this information in a timely manner. The local civil service boards, in turn, report the actions to this office via a copy of the executed personnel action form.
- Fundamental to the personnel management activity is assisting the respective local civil service boards in developing and maintaining a uniform and comprehensive classification plan within each department. As is the case with the testing function, the foundation of the classification activity is the job analysis. Standard job analysis techniques are employed by the Office of State Examiner to evaluate the duties assigned to the various positions by the appointing authority, and homogeneous positions are grouped together as a class of positions. A class description for each class of positions is developed by this office, and includes a general description of the distinguishing features of the class, examples of the major duties, and qualification requirements. New or revised classification descriptions are provided to the respective local civil service boards, who conduct public hearings on the adoption of the new or revised class description in question into their respective class plans as rules of the board following a required thirty day posting period. Once adopted, the class descriptions within the jurisdiction's class plan serve as a basis for determining eligibility for competitive and promotional examinations, as well as for allocating future positions created by the appointing authority to their respective classes in the classified service. The Office of State Examiner initiates classification plan changes or development when indicated necessary by recent job analysis evaluations, to reflect changes in departmental structure initiated by the appointing authority, or when necessitated by changes in federal or state law. ### ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT

- The final major activity performed by the Office of State Examiner is the administrative support provided to local civil service board members, appointing authorities, departmental chiefs, governing bodies, and employees in the system in making the system operational at the local level. The Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service System is unique in many ways, and we have found no other state that has such a provision for state-assisted merit selection at the local level. This is not a state-run system where the state dictates all the provisions of the civil service system to the local jurisdictions. The system is administered through, and the power is therefore vested in, independent civil service boards comprised of local citizens in each jurisdiction to which the system applies. The state provides, through the constitution and statutes, for basic principles and a framework within which the system operates.
- The civil service board members serve without compensation, and most have little or no personnel administration experience. The membership of most civil service boards changes on a fairly frequent basis due, in part, to the nature of the staggered appointments, so to expect the board membership to develop the necessary expertise to administer the civil service system without support is unrealistic. The local boards depend heavily upon the support system provided by the state through the Office of State Examiner. As previously mentioned under other activity areas, the Office of State Examiner develops and maintains the classification plan for the local board in each jurisdiction, provides validated tests for entrance or promotion in cities or fire protection districts, and assists the local boards in assuring that personnel movements are made in accordance with civil service law. In addition to these major activity areas, however, the Office of State Examiner provides administrative support and advice to those at the local level in setting up new jurisdictions, conducting meetings and hearings, adopting rules, and following civil service law as it applies to promotions, appointments, disciplinary action, appeals, and political activity. We also monitor changes in federal and state law, relevant case law, and Attorney General Opinions, which impact the operation of the jurisdictions, and provide timely advice when operational changes are necessary. A major support activity performed by this agency is a series of regional seminars designed to provide training to local departments, governing authorities, and secretaries in the operation of the system. Such seminars provide orientation to new personnel and updates on changes in the law to those who have been actively involved in the operation of the system for many years. Our goal is to make such seminars available to each jurisdiction at least every three years.

Administrative personnel are readily available by telephone, through correspondence, or by attending meetings when requested to do so, to respond to the many questions posed to this office each week from chiefs, governing or appointing authorities, and employees within the system. The magnitude of our mission becomes readily apparent when one considers the fact that we currently have 97 jurisdictions and over 7,800 classified employees in the system. Administrative and Personnel Management personnel review the minutes of all meetings of each municipal fire and police civil service board in order to offer timely guidance to the local civil service boards on the discharge of their duties. The Office of State Examiner also provides original orientation and guidance to governing authorities that are required by law to establish systems, and provides orientation and assistance to newly sworn boards in making the system operational at the local level. Training is provided to local boards, chiefs, secretaries, and other interested individuals through regional seminars conducted by agency personnel. Two manuals have been prepared by this office for the purpose of providing guidance to local authorities: The Operation of a Civil Service System, which is a comprehensive operational manual for civil service board members and board secretaries, and HeadStart, which offers helpful insight for officials responsible for the administration and management of classified personnel. These manuals are distributed at the seminars and made available upon request to those at the local level. Other information is conveyed to the local jurisdictions through mass mailings, or through an agency newsletter entitled, The Examiner. Finally, the Office of State Examiner provides 24-hour access to information requested by the jurisdictions, such as information on forthcoming firefighter and police officer examinations, through both a voice mail system and the agency website (http://www.ose.state.la.us).

Source of Funding

This program is funded through Statutory Dedications as provided for under R.S. 22:1419(A), entitled the Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Operating Fund which shall be used solely for the operations of the office of state examiner. Revenue is collected from two and one-half hundredths of one percent of the gross direct insurance premiums received in the state, in the preceding year, by insurers doing business in the state. (Per R.S. 39:36B.(8), see table below for a listing of expenditures out of each statutory dedicated fund.)

Explanatory Note: The Equal Employment Opportunity's Uniform Guidelines on Employee Selection Procedures is the standard by which the U.S. Department of Justice, the EEOC, and the courts would measure the OSE efforts should the agency be challenged. The Guidelines state that any component of the selection process should be validated in accordance with the standards. The class descriptions include duties and responsibilities, as well as qualification requirements, which must be supported by recent job analysis documentation. In order to assure that the class plans maintained by the OSE and adopted by civil service boards are supported by recent job analysis data, the OSE will:

develop instruments and assign personnel resources necessary to conduct studies to evaluate qualification requirements for public safety positions and to develop validation documentation to support their use in the selection process and ensure that 25% of classification plans are supported by job analysis data less than five years old.

Explanatory Note: The OSE provides a variety of services to local civil service boards and local jurisdictions, including the development, administration, and scoring of tests for classified positions, and providing advice and guidance as to the application of the Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Law. To achieve a satisfactory or better service level rating by local civil service boards and local jurisdictions, the OSE recognizes that it must be responsive to each jurisdiction's individual needs. The agency has a staff only 19 positions which must address the needs of 103 jurisdictions in a classified system that comprises approximately 8400 classified employees.

Explantory Note:

(1). Traditional assessment center components are very expensive to develop and grade, but are able to assess leadership and decision-making skills critical to upper level jobs that would ordinarily not be possible with a standard multiple-choice examination. This test format utilizes what appear to be multiple-choice questions, but which are actually situations or problems presented the question with alternatives for solutions as the answers. The exam material must be developed and validated by panels of subject matter experts, consisting of training officials and experienced incumbents in the jobs for which the test material is being developed.

(2). Fire prevention and investigation classes (which include the class titles of Fire Inspector, Fire Investigator, Fire Prevention Officer, and combinations thereof) have been particularly troubling to the OSE from the standpoint of validity. The nature of the work and the knowledge required to function in the respective classes is not as adaptable to common job analysis and exam planning techniques as other classes the fire and police services are. It is difficult, for example, to determine what knowledge is needed from the first day on the job, versus that for which the incumbent might use as a reference source to accomplish his duties. We currently have approximately 12 classes in this series, and would like to develop a standardized examination for use in as many applicable jurisdictions statewide as possible.

(3). Louisiana's Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Law requires only support for the tests on a pass/fail basis, inasmuch as anyone making a score of 75 or higher is eligible for competitive appointments, and promotional appointments must be offered to the person with a score of 75 or higher with the greatest total departmental seniority. However, the OSE is aware that jurisdictions are using the scores for other purposes. One jurisdiction, for example, will not schedule an interview with an individual seeking entrance employment unless he/she scores at least 95, rather than 75, on the test. Other jurisdictions utilize scores on examinations in breaking ties in seniority when making promotional appointments.

(4). The OSE database of test items comprises apporximately 7,800 test items that have been developed by the OSE. The database includes items in the item bank that have been reviewed, properly sourced, and otherwise revised, and are ready for examination purposes. The database also contains other items that are in various stages of development, review, or revision, and include items that have been submitted for removal from the item bank. Input and output indicators, as well as outcome and efficiency indicators related to this issue may be found in the General Performance Information table that follows this objective.

Explanatory Note: The OSE provides a variety of services to local civil service boards and local jurisdictions, including the development, administration, and scoring of tests for classified positions, and providing advice and guidance as to the application of the Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Law. To achieve a satisfactory or better service level rating by local civil service boards and local jurisdictions, the OSE recognizes that it must be responsive to each jurisdiction's individual needs. The agency has a staff of only 19 positions which must address the needs of 103 jurisdictions in a classified system that comprises approximately 8400 classified employees.

17-562 — Ethics Administration

Agency Description

The mission of Ethics Administration is to provide staff support for the Louisiana Board of Ethics, which administers and enforces Louisiana's conflicts of interest legislation, campaign finance disclosure requirements and lobbyist registration and disclosure laws, to achieve compliance by governmental officials, public employees, candidates, and lobbyists and to provide public access to disclosed information.

The goals of Ethics Administration are as follows:

- I. Improve the level of education and awareness by public servants in order to ensure compliance with conflicts of interest standards, campaign finance disclosure requirements and lobbyist registration and disclosure requirements.
- II. To ensure that the administrative duties of the Louisiana Board of Ethics are carried out in a timely and efficient manner by the staff in order to increase public confidence relative to the accountability of public servants, candidates, political committees and lobbyists.
- III. Enhance timely public access to disclosed information.

Act 64 of the 1996 First Extraordinary Session of the Louisiana Legislature, effective January 1, 1997, reformed the basic structure of Ethics Administration by eliminating the Board of Ethics for Elected Officials and the Commission on Ethics for Public Employees and creating an eleven-member Board of Ethics.

The Board of Ethics is statutorily charged with the responsibility of interpreting, administering and enforcing the Code of Governmental Ethics, the Campaign Finance Disclosure Act (CFDA), the Louisiana Elections Integrity Law and the Louisiana Lobbyist Registration and Disclosure Act (LRDA). The Board of Ethics exercises jurisdiction over all state and local elected officials, all non-elected state and local governmental officials, appointees and employees and over any other "person" who engages in statutorily proscribed conduct. The Board of Ethics serves as the Supervisory Committee for the Campaign Finance Disclosure Act (CFDA). The board is charged also with regulating the amount of contributions that may be received by candidates and committees as well as various other campaign finance activities. The board is likewise responsible for the administration of the Ethics Code requirement that governors and gubernatorial candidates and members of the Gaming Control Board file financial disclosure reports. The Board of Ethics is responsible for the administration and enforcement of the Elections Integrity Act, which provides for the management of complaints with respect to certain Louisiana elections.

Act 66 of the 1996 First Extraordinary Session of the Louisiana Legislature significantly reformed the procedures for enforcing violations of the Campaign Finance Disclosure Act and imposed the requirement for the development of a comprehensive data and information processing program and information distribution network.

The primary statutory responsibility of the Board of Ethics and, therefore, of the Ethics Administration Program (EAP), is to administer and enforce Louisiana's conflicts of interest legislation.

The Board of Ethics is responsible for rendering advisory opinions, reviewing and investing complaints, conducting public hearing and imposing and enforcing remedial and disciplinary actions as may be necessary under the circumstances and as otherwise permitted by law. The Board of Ethics is statutorily mandated by Section 1158 of the Ethics Code to establish the Board of Ethics Computerized Data Management System. On behalf of the Board, the EAP provides technical support to manage and maintain the Board of Ethics Computerized Data Management System, to facilitate the electronic filing and provide on-line computer access to disclosure reports filed with the Board of Ethics. All disclosure reports filed with the Board of Ethics are scanned by the EAP so that the reports are accessible to the general public via the Internet. Also, the EAP is responsible for providing educational material, information, training and seminars on the laws administered by the Board of Ethics to public servants, candidates, political committees, lobbyists and the general public.

The Board of Ethics is likewise responsible for the administration of Section 1124 of the Code of Governmental Ethics that requires governors and gubernatorial candidates to file financial disclosure reports with the Board of Ethics on forms prescribed by the Board and processed by the EAP staff. Financial disclosure reports are also filed with the Board of Ethics by members of the Louisiana Gaming Control Board and the Supervisor of the Louisiana Gaming Control Board. The EAP has developed electronic filing capabilities and Internet access for the filing of such disclosure reports.

The Board of Ethics is responsible for the interpretation, administration and enforcement of the Lobbyist Registration and Disclosure Act. The EAP is responsible for developing, publishing and distributing reports and disclosure forms, auditing and compliance assurance measure and instituting administrative and judicial remedial and disciplinary actions to redress statutory violations.

The Board of Ethics is responsible for the administration and enforcement of the Elections Integrity Act that provides for the management of complaints with respect to certain Louisiana elections. The EAP provides staff support to the Board as the administrator of the Louisiana Elections Integrity program, conducts investigations and presents evidence to the Board in the discharge of its responsibilities to conduct hearings. The Board of Ethics has statutory jurisdiction over elections in Louisiana for the Office of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, State Treasurer, Attorney General, Commissioner of Election, Commissioner of Agriculture, Commissioner of Insurance, United States Senator, United States Congressman, Public Service Commission, members of the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education and Justices of the Supreme Court.

Ethics Administration has only one program, Administration.

| Performance indicators values were filled in for Fiscal Year 07-08 at same level as "Existing", as "Continuation" at current budget level was requested. Since DAL's 06-07 budget was cut so much, and DAL was told this was due to reduction in caseload, performance indicator values were reduced, as instructed. Performance indicator values may need to be reviewed during the budget process in 2007 as more performance data becomes available. |  |   |   |   |  |   |  |  |  |  |

The effect of the 2005 Hurricanes Katrina and Rita upon DAL's performance indicators for FY 2006-07 could not reasonably be predicted at the time the Budget Request had to be filed. Adjustments may be required as these effects, and the speed of recovery, are realized. For this reason, most existing standards were continued.
